Cryptos: Eqonex launch bitcoin dated futures

International | Industry

⌚ 24 Feb 2022 by SRP News

The Nasdaq-listed digital assets financial services company has launched a new type of Bitcoin (BTC) investment product, a BTC dated futures contract with a physical settlement.

The Eqonex BTC Dated Futures are denominated in the USD Coin stablecoin (USDC) and are linear in that the price of the futures increases as the price of BTC increases against USDC. The expiry of the dated future will occur at 08:00 UTC on the final Friday of the expiry month. Use Physical settlement is compared to cash-settled futures contracts. Continue reading and get unlimited access for 7 days with a free trial of SRP.

QUICK TAKE

- Bybit announces plans to settle options contracts in the stablecoin USDC.
- The exchange is one of the largest when it comes to futures trading.

Crypto exchange Bybit announced on Monday that it will offer futures contracts settled in the stablecoin USD Coin (USDC), rather than bitcoin.

This is the first time Bybit will offer futures settled in USDC rather than bitcoin, in an effort to give users stable prices for the duration of the contract, according to a statement. The total number of bitcoin futures contracts held by users on its platform — bitcoin futures open interest — is one of the largest of any exchange.

CEO and co-founder, Ben Zhou, said in the statement that Bybit was very pleased with how the roll-out of its option trading product went. He went on to say “our derivatives platform has the world’s best liquidity and tightest spread, so traders are ensured the best quote and best execution in the market even during extreme volatility.”

Bybit's announcement noted that unlike bitcoin-settled contracts, using USDC allows for stability for the duration of each contract. The move comes at a time when stablecoins have come under renewed scrutiny from regulators and investors, with several high profile stables de-pegging over the past month.

SINGAPORE, Feb. 9 2022 /PRNewswire/ -- Cryptocurrency Exchange EQONEX, as part of EQONEX Limited (Nasdaq: EQOS), today announced the launch of BTC Dated Futures with physical settlement. This marks an important milestone in the company's expanding product suite for experienced traders, enabling them to use commonly deployed derivatives trading strategies in cryptocurrency markets.

This latest launch by EQONEX follows the introduction of Cross Collateral functionality, Ethereum (ETH) Perpetual Futures, and BTC Perpetual Futures in 2021. Dated Futures for additional cryptocurrencies including ETH will also be available on EQONEX in the coming months.

A Dated Futures contract enables users to enter into a binding agreement to buy or sell the underlying asset, in this case BTC, at a predetermined price at a specified date in the future. Futures contracts are commonly used to speculate on the direction of an underlying asset using leverage, and hedge against price movements.

EQONEX is one of the few exchanges globally to offer physically-settled futures contracts for cryptocurrencies such as BTC. EQONEX is able to overcome common security and technical challenges of physical BTC settlement due to its industry-leading, secure custody business ☁

Digivault and its flat on-ramp capabilities.

Andrew Eldon, Interim CEO of EQONEX said, "We still see a gap in the exchange marketplace to better serve traders who are looking for safe access to products and strategies from traditional finance to exploit and hedge against the volatility of crypto market trading. We are removing the barriers to entry by delivering a regulated crypto exchange, and by adding institutional-grade products to our customers' toolkits."

"We have been very deliberate in building a business that sits at the intersection of traditional finance and the future of finance. Those who already understand the merits of basis trading will be particularly appreciative of this product launch, but we are also providing educational resources to help those wanting to learn how to broaden their trading approaches for risk management or to capture yield."

Overview of EQONEX BTC Dated Futures

- EQONEX BTC Dated Futures are denominated in the USD Coin stablecoin (USDC) and are linear in that the price of the futures increases as the price of BTC increases against USDC.
- The expiry of the Dated Future will occur at 08:00 UTC on the final Friday of the expiry month.
- Physical settlement occurs automatically on the expiry date which can also remove some hedging risks that exist with cash-settled contracts.
- Users can trade EQONEX BTC Dated Futures with leverage.
- EQONEX is offering an education program for those seeking to learn more about futures contracts for cryptocurrency markets, as well as detailed product specifications here.

EQONEX LAUNCHES BTC DATES FUTURES WITH PHYSICAL SETTLEMENT

FEBRUARY 21, 2022 9:09 AM UTC, RICK STEVES

Futures contracts are commonly used to speculate on the direction of an underlying asset using leverage, and hedge against price movements.

EQONEX has launched BTC Dated Futures with physical settlement on its Singapore subsidiary, marking an important milestone in the company's expanding product suite.

This latest launch offers experienced traders access to commonly deployed derivatives trading strategies in cryptocurrency markets.

It also follows the introduction of Cross Collateral functionality, Ethereum (ETH) Perpetual Futures, and BTC Perpetual Futures in 2021.

The digital asset exchange launched BTC Dated Futures but will eventually add dated futures for additional cryptocurrencies including ETH in the coming months.

A Dated Futures contract enables users to enter into a binding agreement to buy or sell the underlying asset, in this case BTC, at a predetermined price at a specified date in the future.

Futures contracts are commonly used to speculate on the direction of an underlying asset using leverage, and hedge against price movements.

Few exchanges offer physically-settled futures contracts for cryptocurrencies as it requires exchanges to overcome common security and technical challenges of physical BTC settlement. EQONEX leverages Digivault's custody and its fiat on-ramp capabilities.
